A Historical Intuition on Mars as a Future Civilizational Frontier

Creator: Siefollah Aslani
Date: 27 December 2025

I hold a historical intuition rather than a scientific prediction.

I sense that within the next one hundred years, human settlement on Mars may represent a civilizational shift comparable to the discovery of the Americas — not primarily as a technological achievement, but as a transformation in how humanity understands space, expansion, and itself.

This reflection is recorded as a personal historical perspective, intended for long-term archival reference.